Collection Description: Among the prominent early nineteenth century printers in Connecticut were the Babcocks. John Babcock (1764-1843) started in Albany, N.Y., moved to Springfield, Mass., and then to Hartford (c.1800-c.1815), before settling in New Haven. He went bankrupt in 1825 and his business in New Haven and a branch in Charleston, S.C., was assumed by his son, Sidney (1797?-1884), proprietor of "Sidney's Press" in New Haven. These business records and incoming correspondence illuminate the Hartford and New Haven printing activity and political interests of John Babcock while the business career of Sidney Babcock is reflected in the receipts and correspondence of the period of his proprietorship.
