VALENTINES for 1876.

IN making our announcement to the Valentine Trade for the coming season, we have no hesitation in asserting the superiority of our Valentines over those heretofore placed before the public.

Our large experience and increasing facilities place within our reach the finest materials, and most skillful artists and workmen; and these are constantly improving our old stock, and introducing novelties of a high standard. A large amount of the material used by us is manufactured upon our own premises. This enables us to furnish a superior quality of Valentines at low prices.

We manufacture the best Comic Valentines to be found among the trade.

The artistic perfection of production is a matter of growth, and our Sentimental Valentines have been improving with our growth covering a period of thirty six years.

Among our new features we take pleasure in calling your attention to our

FOLDING GAME BOARDS.

We have this season largely increased the number of our Folding Games, and our additions will be found superior to any that we have heretofore turned out. We make them in the style of the ordinary Checker and Backgammon Boards. The advantages of this style over the flat folding games heretofore made are many and important. We notice some of these under the following heads:

DURABILITY.—A quality as much to the advantage of the dealer as to the consumer—always pleasing the latter, and saving wear and less in handling to the former. Our frames are made of wood, and the games are varnished.

WARPING.—A Folding Board will always retain its shape, and can be played upon as readily in the lap, or upon a table, as upon the table, while the flat folding games necessarily warp and curl, and can be used only under favorable circumstances.

ECONOMY.—Folding games are almost always put up in two different packages, resulting in constant petty losses and annoyances to both the dealer and his customer. The two parts get separated and mixed up, and the package containing the implements is often torn and liable to accident. Our folding boards contain all their implements, and our method of casing them precludes all possibility of any of these annoyances.

CASKING.—Each board is furnished with a separate pasteboard case or envelope, completely protecting it from the dirt, and keeping it bright and fresh. It also binds the board firmly, and renders errors in filling orders from loss of implements, or oversight in forwarding, impossible.

DISPLAY.—In this respect our boards offer a decided advantage. They make a dealer’s stock look attractive and substantial, while the customer feels that he gets the full value of his money.

3. LEAP FROG.
This board contains a circular row of spaces, with a conical frog picture in the centre, surrounded by an ornamental border of flowers. Played with dice and checkers. The moves correspond with the idea conveyed by the title. The more the game is played the better it will be liked.

4. DUCK SHOOTING.
In this board a party of hunters, occupying a boat in a river, are represented as shooting ducks. The ducks having discovered their enemy, are taking to flight. Each throw of the dice kills the duck having the corresponding number. Entertainment and popular.

5. NAVAL ENGAGEMENT.
A stirring scene between a fort and a fleet of vessels. The large guns of the fort are彼此 firing forth fire and smoke, which the ships are returning with activity. The throws of the dice sink the vessels, or silence the guns of the fort, as the case may be. The side holding out longest wins.

6. FISHING.
Is carried out upon a board representing a bridge, filled with fishermen, who are watching their lines for a “bite.” During the game the fish must not only be hooked, but must be drawn out of the water—a very interesting and by no means certain operation.

7. SPIDER AND FLY.
A familiar scene in every country, though somewhat magnified upon the board. A huge spider’s web, with numbered spaces, is stretched between two trees, and forms the basis of a very fine game. The winner, like the old maid in the game of that name, has rather a doubtful honor.

8. CROQUET.
A representation of a fine lawn, with wickets laid out, and party of young people engaged in play. The wickets are numbered, and the directions provide for moves that are in harmony with the field game. A fine parlor substitute for out-door croquet.

9. FALCONRY.
Is based upon the popular amusement of the twelfth century. The board contains a picture, representing a party of noblemen engaged in this sport. The moves are different for each die, making the game both novel and entertaining.

10. THE PEARL DIVERS.
The board contains a representation of the method of gathering pearls in the East. The divers’ uncertainty of success is well exemplified throughout the game. Simple, and well calculated to please old as well as young people.

11. RABBIT HUNT.
A pretty landscape, having in its centre a rabbit Warren, surrounded by a circular series of numbered spaces. One player represents the rabbit, and the rest of the players the hounds. Method of play different from either of the foregoing.

12. BEAR HUNT.
A capital idea, carried out in an unusually simple and interesting game. The design contains four large trees, with several bears and huntsmen. The object of the game is to climb the trees by the odd and even combinations of the dice.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S HOME GAMES.

Twelve Kinds. Per Assorted Dozen, $4.90.

This series consists mostly of outdoor amusements, sports, and occupations, adapted to a Folding Game Board. As most of these belong to the Summer season, they will prove good rainy day games for Summer. Printed in colors. Size of folded boards, nine and a quarter inches long, five and three-quarter inches wide, and one and five-eighths inches high. Furnished with next wooden dice-cup, and men. Put up in assorted dozens, containing one of each.

1. TIGHT-ROPE DANCING.
   A fine landscape in colors, showing a network of rope stretched across a river. "Blondines" in bright costumes are crossing on the rope—others are falling from it. The object of the game is to cross on the rope by means of dice. A spirited game.

2. QUOITS.
   A backwoods scene, where a party are engaged in the invigorating out-door game. Quoits are arranged around the "halo," as though a game were in progress. These are numbered, and the players play for them by means of dice, counting according to their nearness to the hub.

STANDARD FOLDING GAMES.

In speaking of the marked excellence of this line of games, both in the style of the boards and in play, we can scarcely refrain from covering a page or more of our catalogue. As they cannot fail to be conspicuous among other lines of goods, we will let them speak for themselves, simply saying that each board contains three distinct games, each executed in the best style of art that we can command. The games themselves are simple, varied, and entirely new. Size of boards when opened, eighteen inches square. The implements are neat, substantial, and pleasing. Directions clear and explicit.

THE PILGRIM'S PROGRESS (New.) Ready September 1
Three Games in one Board, viz.:
Each Board separately wrapped and labeled.

THE PILGRIM'S PROGRESS
Is based on the work of John Bunyan. The design is in the form of a round-pointed star. The Celestial City, surrounded by the River of Death, occupies the centre of the board. At the angles and points of the star there are illustrations of the principal events in the Pilgrim's journey. The game is played with our new Indicator, and is based upon six different colors, which have been worked into it in a very pleasing manner. An illustrated synopsis of Bunyan's book accompanies the game.

GOING TO SUNDAY SCHOOL
Occupies one-half of the inside of the board. In the centre of this game there is a large clock dial, entwined with an elaborate and graceful vine of ivy. The margin of the board is handsomely laid out, and contains a number of illustrated spaces. At the four corners there are four large and handsome churches. The players move around the margin of the board, and register upon the clock dial the time occupied in so doing.

THE TOWER OF BABEL
Occupies the remaining half of the inside. This is an elaborate design, and presents the appearance of an imposing structure, with the artifices busily at work, as they might have appeared just prior to the division of its builders. The game is played with the Indicator, using both colors and numbers. At one stage of the game there is confusion among the players, corresponding to that which must have taken place upon the confusion of tongues. The players change men by means of the Indicator.

VALDEVIA, or Central Park Game—New. Ready in October.
Three Games in one Board, viz.:
Valdevia. Robin Hood's Archers. Ten Pins.
Each Board separately wrapped and labeled.

VALDEVIA
Occupies the outside of the board, and is a bird's-eye view of Central Park, laid out in lawns, groves, ponds, streams, bridges, &c. The players move over the boulevards, promenades, and rambles of the park. None of the boards of this series are laid out in set spaces, like most of their predecessors, and they will be found equally varied with them in play. When this board is laid out upon the table on a cold wintry evening, it cannot fail to impart a cheerful influence.

McLaughlin Brothers' Catalogue of Games.

TEN PINS
Occupies one-half of the inside of the board, and is another elaborate design—a beautiful landscape, representing a party of Continentals engaged in the time-honored game of Ten Pins. Upon this board players may make their "strikes and spares," but will be more evenly matched than in the original game, which depends largely on the muscle of the player. Played with the Indicator.

ROBIN HOOD'S ARCHERS
Fills the other half of the inside. In this design a party of Foresters, in the picturesque costume of the middle centuries, are engaged in shooting at a target. The game has been designed as a parlor counterpart of that exciting sport, and the players cannot fail to be impressed with the similarity between the out-door and indoor game. Played with the Indicator.

JEROME PARK STEEPLE CHASE GAME.
Per Dozen, $15.00
Three Games in one Board, viz.:
The Steeple Chase Game. The Balky Horse. Pool.
Each Board separately wrapped and labeled.

THE STEEPLE CHASE GAME
Has been a popular amusement on the continent of Europe and in England for many years. Recently it has been imported into the United States in considerable quantities. This board differs from the others in style and size. When folded, it is fourteen inches long by twelve and a quarter inches wide. Printed in colors, after the style of the English boards. Furnished with horses in colors mounted upon standards, dixo-cups, and dice.

THE GAME OF THE Balky Horse
Occupies one-half of the inside of the board, and is played upon the numbered spaces arranged in a circle. The centre of the board has a standard or button, upon which revolves a wooden cross. The horses are mounted upon this, and set in motion by the thumb and forefinger. The game is played with counters. Each player has a horse, and names a space upon which one of the horses will stop.

POOL
Occupies the other half of the inside of the board, and consists of two sets of playing cards, running from the ace to the ten spot, printed alternately in red and black. One set occupies one, and the other the opposite end of the board. The players use counters, horses, and the revolving cross-piece. If their horse stops upon a space whose number corresponds to a card, they make a point in the game.

GAME OF LIFE'S MISHAPS—(New.) Per Dozen, $9.00

Two Games in one Board, viz:

Life's Mishaps. Domino Rex.

Each Board separately wrapped and labeled.

THE GAME OF LIFE'S MISHAPS

Occupies the outside of this Board. It contains forty-eight spaces of various shapes and sizes, printed in colors. Twenty of these spaces contain the ludicrous adventures of a son of the Emerald Isle. The balance of the spaces are blanks. Each player is provided with counters, and the object of the game is to reach, by their aid, the space numbered forty-eight. The mishaps are the set-backs upon the road. The players first reaching forty-seven and forty-eight win.

THE GAME OF DOMINO REX

Occupies both spaces of the inside of this Board. In each half space there is a Checker Board, containing forty squares, sixteen of them having spots like those of a domino. In front of each checker board there are two semi-circular rows of spaces, numbered from seven to eleven. The game is played with checkers only. These are placed one each upon the domino squares, and one each upon the first row of spaces. The uncovering of a domino square by one player, determines in a measure the move of his opponent. In simplicity, originality, and scope of play, the game has but few equals.

THE CAPTIVE PRINCESS. Per Dozen, $8.00

This game contains thirty-nine colored squares, arranged in a concentric ring, and terminating in a castle, at the center of the board. A landscape pathway, containing several mounted knights in full armor, also leads to the castle. The game is played with colored cubes, and is so simple that its description occupies only ten lines. The object of the game is to rescue the princess, and the player first reaching the castle wins. It had a large sale last season, and has proved deservedly popular.
