

A List of Portraits Painted by Ethan Allen Greenwood

ETHAN ALLEN GREENWOOD is one of the most curious and more obscure figures in the history of American art. Born at Hubbardston, Massachusetts, on May 27, 1779, a son of Major Moses Greenwood, he showed to a marked degree the versatility and cleverness without genius which was such a marked characteristic of the Yankees of his generation. From his first recorded portrait, that of his brother Aaron, done in 1801, through his years as a school-teacher, an under-graduate at Dartmouth, a law student, a practicing lawyer, and a museum manager, he painted an incredible number of portraits which were, to judge by the four in our collection, really creditable art. The best surviving account of his career is contained in the following notes extracted from his diary by his "granddaughter" (probably a daughter of a stepchild) Mrs. John (Marianne R.) Bartholomew of Barre, Massachusetts:

Went to New Salem Academy in 1798. Taught school in Athol for two months in 1799 at $3.00 a month. In Aug. 1799 went to Princeton to study with Rev. Mr. Russell. In Nov. 1799 began to teach school in Princeton at $14.00 a month, 25 scholars first day, increased to 83. In April 1800 went to Leicester Academy. While there played the fife for Capt. Sprague at Worcester Muster. In Dec. 1800 began to teach school in Westminster. In 1801 was initiated into Masonry at Northfield—Harmony Lodge. In April 1801 returned to Leicester Academy, left Leicester Academy in Jan. 1802 and commenced teaching school in Westminster at $17.00 a month. Entered Dartmouth College in Aug. 1802. Left College in Nov. and began teaching school in Westminster at $22.00 a month. Returned to College in 1803. Left College at Commencement in Aug. and began in Sept. teaching the Latin Grammer

School in Lancaster. Finished school in Jan. 1804 and returned to College. Left College for a while in Nov. 1804 and began school in Lancaster—school increased to 100 scholars. Returned to College in April 1805. Spent the summer after Commencement painting portraits and returned to College in Oct. 1805. In Jan. 1806 went to New York and began drawing and painting with Mr. Edward Savage and while there painted 10 portraits (copies) of Jefferson, Franklin, Adams, Washington and Stuart full length of Washington and sketched and painted a portrait of himself. Returned to Dartmouth the last of March 1806. Between the time he was back from New York till Commencement he painted 10 portraits besides signs, standards of colors, caps for Light Infantry etc, and took several Profiles in Aug. 1806. Received with his class the degree of A.B. In Sept. 1806 went to West Point but in Nov. returned and commenced teaching in Westminster and studying law in Mr. Strongs office. Finished teaching in March 1807, and continued the study of Law and in 1810 was admitted to the Bar in Worcester. In 1809 went to Commencement at Dartmouth and rec'd degree of A.M. In 1811 painted 70 portraits in different families and towns and felt confident he had done much better than if he had commenced the practice of Law. In June (18th) 1812 went to Boston to reside and follow painting, the very day the war of 1812 was declared. Had room at the "Province House." Painted 78 portraits in 1812. In Nov. 1813 took two rooms in Scolley's Building, No. 1 Tremont St.—88 portraits that year. In Sept. 1814 elected member of the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Co.—61 portraits in 1814, 65 portraits in 1815 and 65 in 1816 and 44 in 1817. In April 1818 with Mr. Edward Savage moved the contents of the Museum of the late Mr. Savage from Boylston Hall to New England Hall.¹ July 4th 1818 joined the Museum and attended the laying of the corner stone of the Mass. General Hospital and in the evening opened the New England Museum 76 Court St. corner of Market St. (now Cornhill). 58 portraits in 1818. Opened Gallery of Fine Arts, July 19th 1818, 69 Market St. Nov. 15th purchased all the rights of Mr. Savage in Museum and Gallery of Fine Arts which makes me [made him] the owner of all the establishment except 2 shares. In Sept. 1818 bought the whole collection of the New Haven Museum and had it packed and moved to Boston. Painted 50 portraits in 1819; 35 in 1820; 16 in 1821. In Aug. 1822 bought the Boston Museum—12 portraits 1822. July 1823 opened the new Gallery of Fine Arts. Nov. 1823 opened a Museum in Portland, Me.—receipts the first evening for benefit of Wiscasset sufferers from fire. In Sept. 1824 opened Museum in Providence. In 1825 purchased the Columbian and City Museum of Boston.

After the death of his father in 1827 he returned to Hubbardston where he became in time selectman, representative, and State senator. He died on May 3 or 6, 1856.

Had Greenwood's diary survived, it would have been one of the important documents for the history of art in America. In it he recorded many small things which illustrated the practices of the artists of his day. This diary passed into the hands of Mrs. Bartholomew who copied out the list of portraits which follows but, despite the pleas and visits of the officers of this Society, destroyed the original in 1943. She died in 1945.
